11	Read the following text carefully and answer the questions. In 1930, when Pluto was discovered, it was called the ninth planet of the Solar System. In 2006, scientists changed the definition of a planet, making Pluto just a very small planet. However, some scientists still believe that Pluto is a planet. Those who think that Pluto should be listed as a planet strongly believe that it is very similar to the real planets of the Solar System in a number of things. Pluto is much smaller, but it is large enough for gravity to keep it round and even have an atmosphere. Those who think Pluto should be just a very small planet believe that the discovery of more new objects in the Solar System is creating many problems. Scientists need to name Pluto a planet or they must add a large number of new planets to the list. True or False: 33- Scientists added a large number of new planets to the Solar System. (.....) 34- There are a lot of heavenly objects like Pluto in the Solar System. (.....) 35- What can be the best topic for this passage? a) Is Pluto a planet or not? b) Is Pluto big or small? c) How did we discover Pluto? d) When was Pluto discovered? 36- What does the underlined word "similar" mean? a) different b) alike c) clear d) strange Answer the following questions completely. 37- What did scientists do in 2006 about a planet? 38- Do all scientists believe that Pluto is a planet in the Solar System?	3
