J:*a: Read the text and choose the best answer. (٣ points)

Men and women define "best friend" in the same way. Your best friend is someone who shares your happiness, suffers through your worries, and eases your stress. A man told me, "If you call me at ٣:٠٠ a.m. and you have to wait four hours for a tow truck, I'll come and get you".

A variety of factors can help establish a best friendship, including the age of the people, the situation in which they meet, and how they satisfy each other's needs, but in my study, I found the main themes that define a best friend were remarkably similar for all.

"Safety" was a word I heard over and over. Best friends are your "safe zone." You never have to edit yourself too much or worry about being too loud or too quiet. Your best friend makes you feel safe and provides a comfort zone because they understand you so well. You can be completely honest with them, and they won't judge or make you feel ashamed of your behavior. A best friend gives you encouragement if you need it, but they'll not judge your weaknesses. A best friend gives you unconditional love. That means complete love without any limits.

Best friends are loyal and trustworthy. A best friend is a person whom you can tell your most embarrassing personal secrets to. You can be sure that your best friend won't repeat your secrets to anyone.

Finally, best friends can also be completely honest with you, but in the most gentle way. For many people, a best friend becomes the family you choose. They love you because they want to, not because they have to. For some people, the best friend is the brother or sister they always wanted but never had.

A man I knew asked his dying mother, "What has been the most important thing in your life?" He fully expected her to say her husband, her children, or her family. Instead, without a moment's hesitation, she replied sweetly, "My friends."
